Seeing the profession reduced to these sultry nights exasperates some established professionals. "The news leads to unbearable amalgamations," Jérémie Vosse, founder of Premium Conciergerie, the market leader, is annoyed. His company is a travel agency that holds the Atout France and Virtuoso labels, which are guarantees of respectability in the industry, but it is also an event planning company. "I can plan an evening, but I would never take the responsibility of inviting people, even if they are carefully selected," "unknown to my clients. I don't make that kind of connection," he sweeps away.

Similarly, its concierge service is now able to offer any product and any service, anywhere in the world, at any hour of the day or night – and at any price –

"Drugs or escorts are absolutely not in our catalog, Never, that is a red line that cannot be crossed! he insists. I am already subject to a very Constant high levels of stress, and I want to be able to sleep. My clients know that at the slightest request bordering on illegality, we cease collaboration.

The fees for these services vary from one company to another. At Premium Concierge, "the annual subscription is mandatory to access our services and our promise to acknowledge receipt of the request within five minutes, 24 hours a day, seven days a week," summarizes Jérémie Vosse. For individuals, there are two options,

“Premium Black” for two people at 6,000 euros excluding tax, or “Premium Family” which can extend to five family members, for 12,000 euros excluding tax. Brands – particularly fashion houses and jewelry – have “Corporate” packages, the cost of which depends on the number of requests.

“What we offer them that is most valuable is to bend the course of time a little,” continues Jeremy Vosse. “In other words, allowing them to obtain in a few minutes what normally takes months, or even years.” He takes pride in having successfully organized a wedding for several hundred guests in the south of France in just one week, in the middle of summer, thanks to his exceptional connections across all trades. In luxury concierge, the network is key to meeting the most eccentric requests.
